

I think it would greatly simplify communications as they have evolved with cell phones, if individuals could keep their existing cell phone numbers when they switched services. When we switch carriers on our wired home service we do not need to change phone numbers. I think it makes sense that it should work the same way for cell service.